

HEALTH AND SAFETY IN CONTRACTING

7 CERTIFICATE CREDITS

Learn how to influence health and safety in the contracting process with this one day course.

Who should attend this course?

The Health and Safety in Contracting course is designed for those who influence the health and safety decisions in the contracting process, such as;

- › principal and sub-contractors
- › clients
- › consultants
- › managers

Introduction:

This course uses industry specific examples and scenarios to help you understand the role you play in contracting. Understand in detail your responsibilities, the cost benefits and how you can coordinate, cooperate and consult when contracting.

On the course you'll learn to:

- › Identify the roles and legal responsibilities in the contracting process
- › Recognise the benefits of selecting contractors who perform safely
- › Recognise how to get involved and influence each stage of the contracting process
- › Recognise safety culture and key performance indicators

ASSESSMENT

ON-COURSE AND TAKE HOME ASSIGNMENT

On completion receive:

- › A Gold Site Safety Card (Passport) that indicates your level of training and gives you access to site (valid for two years)
- › Health and Safety in Contracting Certificate
- › 7 credits towards the Health and Safety in Construction programme leading towards the NZQA New Zealand Certificate in Workplace Health and Safety Practice Level 3 (40 credits required to graduate)required to graduate)

Next learning steps:

We offer a range of one and two-day courses that build on the learning from this course. Courses which renew your gold Site Safety Card include:

- › Risk Management
- › Training and Supervising Workers
- › Leadership in Safety