

SUPERVISOR GOLD CARD COURSE

10 CERTIFICATE
CREDITS

A unique two-day course designed to provide on-site leadership skills in health and safety for the New Zealand Construction industry.

This course has been specifically designed in collaboration with industry's requirements for on-site leadership and provides an in-depth knowledge of construction health and safety.

Who Should Attend This Course?

Site leaders would find the Supervisor Gold Card valuable, including:

- › Supervisors
- › Foreman
- › Leading hands

Course Outline

The course is broken up into interactive modules that demonstrate the links between a safety culture and profitability. Real life examples from high-risk areas in the construction industry are studied in a team environment. The course looks closely at the Supervisor's role as a coach and leader, focusing on how to influence, train and instruct staff. Participants learn management techniques for developing a safety culture and how to establish procedures to ensure employees act safely.

Key topics of discussion:

- › The effects that accidents have on overall costs and profits
- › How to identify and eliminate the risks associated with project hazards and unsafe behaviour
- › How to plan health and safety into projects by making it convenient
- › How to improve actions on site by using techniques that encourage employee observation and inspection
- › How to take proactive steps to manage safety
- › The ability to investigate accidents.

Improving and Updating Health and Safety knowledge

A one day Supervisor Gold Card Update refresher course with best practice developments in health and safety is the next logical step to keep up to date.
